only received and adopted in the National Convention of the whig and democratic parties as a final settlement, in principle and substance, of the dangerous and exciting question of slavery. I can tell gentlemen, however, that it might be accounted for in still another way. At the time this resolution was adopted there were a great many in the ranks of the democratic party who were not democrats in good faith, but had free-soil proclivities, and the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. Nichols] was perhaps one—for he claimed formerly to be a democrat. The gentleman from Indiana [Mr. Cumback] was another, and some other of his republican colleagues from Indiana were afflicted with the same ugly complaint. When this free-soil element—when such gentlemen as these were hanging upon the skirts of the democratic party, this resolution was smuggled through a democratic convention in my State.

But I can tell gentlemen that our party has been purified since then, that this corrupt free-soil portion has stoughed off, and a part of it, by some strange combination in the chapter of accidents, drifted into this hall—on the principle, perhaps, that dirty scum sometimes rises to the top of boiling water. We have lost the sectional portion of our party, but, thank Heaven, we have gained what is far better, the national portion of the old whig party. We have just achieved a great victory over the black republicans of the North and their know nothing allies of the South. We have for the time being, at least, and I trust forever, checked the onward march of sectionalism at the North. We have fought it, not because it was in the North, but because it was sectionalism. Sir, we are just as ready to fight the same spirit in the South, or wherever else it may lift its hydra head.

When Mr. Buchanan said "that the object of his administration would be to destroy any sectional party—North or South—and to harmonize all sections of the Union under a national and conservative Government, as it was fifty years ago," he uttered a sentiment which should meet the cordial approval of every patriotic heart. This is no time for violent, extreme men, or extreme views. The country demands peace. We want a firm, conservative, national administration, which I, have confidence we shall have—one looking to the happiness of the whole people and the perpetuation of the Union under the Constitution, as paramount objects—consolidatory in its character—respecting the rights of all and just to all, but firm and decided in rebuking sectionalism and fanaticism, no matter from what quarter it may come.

These are what I conceive to be some of the views and wishes of the democracy of my State. In repelling the charges made against them, and in defining their position, I have been led to extend my remarks beyond what I had at first designed. I believe it is their intention, as it is certainly mine, to stand, by the rights of the people of an organized Territory to determine, under the Constitution, this question of slavery for themselves without interference on the part of any outsiders whatever. We intend to stand by the Union, to the last, and to war upon abolitionism and its kindred heresies to the bitter end.

KENTUCKY AGE.

CYNTHIANA, KENTUCKY:

FREE THOUGHTS

It will not be denied that the only practical issues presented in the late Presidential canvass, were those evolved by the agitation of the slavery question. In the success of the democratic party, the power of the Federal government to make no useful regulations concerning the Territories of the Republic, was restricted to that control absolutely necessary to the organization of Territorial governments, preparatory to the admission of new States. The right of free emigration from every latitude, to the common Territories of the country, was recognized. And when those immigrants were once bona fide settled in their new homes, their social organization regulated, their government put in operation, and the whole machinery of their society set in motion, their capacity to determine for themselves, when in the act of forming their State government, or sooner if proper judicial tribunal shall so decide, what shall be the character of their domestic institutions, has been vindicated. In the elevation of the democratic candidates, the American people have also declared it to be entirely beyond the province of the Federal government to restrict slavery by a refusal to admit any more slave States. The right of a people presenting themselves with the requisite population and a republican form of government, to be received without inquiry by Congress into the provisions of their constitution upon the subject of slavery, has been established.

These are the great political principles upon which the democratic party stood a unit, North and South, in the last canvass. But in their maintenance, the right of private judgment and individual opinion was not encroached upon. The policy, morality or the converse of slavery were not in issue. It was not proposed that the result of that contest would determine that slavery in itself was an evil or a blessing, but simply that it would decide the civil rights of the people of all parts of the Republic under the constitution. Slavery might be a curse, a sin, and a political evil, yet it might be entirely out of the sphere of the power of the federal authorities to arrest or restrict it. And again it might be a sine of strength in our body politic, a moral blessing, even essential to our social organization, yet no power be found to exist in Congress to extend or strengthen it. The extent of the control of the general government over the institution, as involved in the settlement of the power of Congress in the government of the Territories, was the practical question in issue.

The private opinions of men, therefore, as to the abstract morality and justice of human bondage, gusi for his administration. Since office-hunting became a trade, each new President is escorted to Washington by a swarm of political vultures, who are prepared to "Crook the giant hinges of the knee, That thief may follow fawning." or to rend with their talons the administration which overlooks their talents. These political and moral pests are as certain to visit this country once in four years, as the fourth year is to come around. They are as regular in their appointments as the seventeen year locusts, and but little less to be dreaded.

These disaffected and neglected geniuses, are already snuffing disappointment. Hence they are, through the Washington letter-writers, paving the way for an "imbecile administration," and all that sort of thing. We trust that Mr. Buchanan will dredge both their prayers and their threats, and choose a cabinet to suit himself.

THE CINCINNATI ENQUIRER.—This sterling democratic journal comes to us in an entire new dress. It is now printed on copper-faced type, which makes an extremely neat and clear impression. The proprietors have also purchased one of Hoe's celebrated presses, which enables them to keep pace with the rapidly increasing popularity of the Enquirer. For mechanical beauty the Enquirer is not surpassed by any paper north or south. It is also very ably edited in its several departments. For local news it is far ahead of any of its Cincinnati contemporaries. In politics it is a national democratic paper of the first quality. We hope the Enquirer will receive the liberal patronage which the energy and ability of its conductors so richly merit. Terms—Daily, $6; weekly, $2 per annum. Club prices for weekly—20 copies for $20; 15 copies, $16; 10 copies $12; 5 copies, $6; 3 copies, $5.

It now takes thirty-five yards of dry goods to make a dress for a New York belle. Enough to cover the great bell of Moscow.

PUNCH likens a fashionable lady's dress of the present day to a circus tent, and says the comparison is more striking from the fact that there is usually a fool in the centre of either. Punch is an unmitigated wretch.

ON DIR.—The know-nothings of Kentucky talk of holding a convention (don't laugh!) in Louisville.

STOLEN.—Our leading editorial is borrowed, verbatim et literatim, from the Lexington Statesman, or earlier—is a matter proper for judicial determination, and a subject upon which a political party can never be called upon to act. The difference of opinion therefore upon this point—embracing the much talked of doctrine of squatter sovereignty—is by no means inconsistent with a perfect nationality and unity of political sentiment. It matters not what a political party may hold as to the capacity of the people of the Territories to exclude or admit slavery, their action in that regard can only be limited by the supreme court. Hence, democrats may entertain different opinions as to the exact time when this power exists, to the pioneers of a new country, and still lose none of their nationality and consistency.

It is one of the elements of democracy to tolerate a perfect freedom of thought and individual opinion. The mission of the democratic party is to direct and control the administration of the federal government. Upon all principles touching that administration, its policy, powers, &c., the members of the party must be united. But upon questions of morality, religion, jurisprudence, &c., the democratic party professes to tolerate in its members the utmost latitude of free thought. And this is right.

ATTENTION, GENTLEMEN!—We clip the following announcement from the Glasgow Journal:

THE TENDRILS OF MY HEART DEMAND SUPPORT. A young lady, between 17 and 12 years of age, artless and unsophisticated in every respect, wishes to marry; personal appearances acceptable, manners refined to some extent, mind somewhat cultivated, character irreproachable, extremely difficult.

A gentleman of intellectual attainments, high moral culture, polite bearing, energy of character—will be received. Should any gentleman be disposed to favor the advertisement with a response, address Miss Y. Z., Park Post office, Marion county, Ky. PROMPT attention will be given.

There, follows; if you want an "unsophisticated" being, now's your time. Hurry to the support of those "tendrils."

Gen. Simon Cameron, black-republican, has been elected United States Senator from Pennsylvania.

James S. Green, democrat, has been elected United States Senator from Missouri for the short term, and Gov. Polk for the full term.

It is not to be expected that Mr. Buchanan can form a cabinet that will meet the approbation of all, or even of all the prominent men in the democratic party. It is to be hoped that he is not expecting such harmonious results. It is vastly easier to tell a true democrat and patriot after election than before. Different men often display equal zeal and apparent devotion to principle, who are actuated by entire different motives. When the offices come to be filled by the incoming President, we shall see many who were Mr. Buchanan's ardent supporters taken with a sudden loss of appetite.

Aaron Stockton, who resides near the falls of Kanawha, recently sold to Kroome, Pickett & Co., who are erecting works for the manufacture of coal oil, on the Kanawha river, a tract of 2000 acres of land near that river, for the sum of $50,000. This land has been selling within the last three years at $2 50 per acre, and this sale shows an advance of $22 50 per acre, or 1000 per cent.

A HAPPY MOTHER.

Grace Greenwood (Mrs. Lippincott) edits a neat little paper called the Little Pilgrim. In her December number, she dedicates the following "To Mothers":

"MY DEAR FRIENDS: Since I last addressed you, another year has passed over us—a peaceful and fortunate year, to most of you I trust, yet doubtless bringing to the happiest hearts and homes something of change and sorrow.

"To me it has brought the most profound and sweet, the most solemn and sacred happiness of womanhood—for within this year I have been joined to 'the great and noble army of mothers.' I am now one of you. O, if there is any time when a woman feels that she is like Mary of old, 'blessed among women,' it is when she finds in her arms her first-born child, feels the touch of its tender little hands, thrills on her heart strings—feels upon her cheek the first soft breath of a life immortal—sees faintly twinkling in the misty depths of sleepy little eyes a love that shall yet brighten the world for her. This joy unspeakable, this holy triumph of maternity, is heaven's abundant compensation for all that is suffered by woman—for all that is denied to her.

"With existence renewed, freshened by the inflow of this pure life from the divine fountain of life—with my heart made more tender and loving by the sweet, mysterious influences by which babyhood, mighty in helplessness, and without speech most eloquent, comes to us—I feel like consecrating myself anew to the service of such as Jesus took in his arms and blessed—and of you, whom maturity makes kin to her once elected to the highest joy and deepest anguish of mortality—her whom he first loved and most tenderly remembered in his last hour. My work has now a more serious character than at first; now I can claim your sympathy and sisterly aid in a common purpose—an equal interest. Now I know your hearts will be with me, by the quickened throats, the earnest, unselfish glow of my own. So let us begin the new year—counting surely and confidently upon each other's sympathy and God's blessing."

GRACE GREENWOOD."

We hope the "extra" little pilgrim will be a well-spring of pleasure" in the household of Grace, and grow up a second edition of its amiable mother. It's a girl.

THE EMPIRE OF BRAZIL IN SOUTH AMERICA.—William H. Young, who lately traveled a great deal in Brazil, recently delivered a lecture upon that country which we find fully reported in the Baltimore papers. We make from it the following extract:

No country has been so richly endowed by Providence as Brazil. Its forests contain a greater variety of timber than can be found in any other land, many of the trees possessing value for medicinal uses, dyeing, &c. More than half of the manifold varieties of the palm species are indigenous to its climate, and there alone is to be found that wonderful plant, the Victoria Regia. The forests not only cover the plains but even on the lofty hill-sides may be seen the variegated and constantly enduring verdure of the trees growing thickly upon them. Some of the trees are the most singular, too, that have ever been met with. He has seen whole forests, partaking of nature of the sensitive plant, closing their foliage as the sun sank to rest at night, and opening it again as it arose in the morning.

The mineral wealth also comprises every variety of metal—gold and silver existing more abundantly than anywhere else on this continent except in California and Mex co—and a vast number of precious stones and jewels. Diamonds, which, save in the famous mines of Golconda and those of Bornéo, are seldom found elsewhere, are here dug and washed from the sands of the river.

The lecturer also alluded to the coffee trade, which is one of the most important exports of the country at present, greatly exceeding in value its shipments of metallic wealth.

ITS AREA AND CLIMATE. The area of Brazil is from three million to three million four hundred thousand square miles—a great deal larger than that of the entire United States. It lies between five degrees north latitude and the Tropic of Capricorn—being within the tropics, yet differing materially from any other tropical country, inasmuch as it is deadly simeons sweep over it, and desert is to be crossed in traversing it, and no earthquakes rock it to its bottom, making it an infallible dwelling-place.

While in Mexico, some portions of California, and in South America down to the fifth degree of north latitude, they have no rain, and the climate is arid and parching; in Brazil, east of the Andes, there is plenty of rain, and the climate is sub-tropical and healthy; and the Amazon, Orinoco, Paraguay and other rivers, irrigate and render the soil fertile.

The condition of climate was accounted for by the lecturer on the hypothesis advanced by Lieutenant Murray, that the continued trade winds daily passing over it from the ocean carry clouds and moisture which are caught by its lofty mountains and distilled over the land in general showers. During the day these winds blow from the sea contributing to make the climate cool and delightful, while at night the land breezes prevail, bearing on its wings the perfumes of prevailing woods, which load the air with fragrance.

ACCLIMATION AND PESTILENCES.

Strangers going to Brazil are not subject to the risk attending acclimation. It is almost always healthy, there having been no epidemic prevailing until 1850, when the yellow fever broke out there, but even this was not so fatal in its worst season as the cholera of 1832 was here. The accounts of it are greatly exaggerated. Mr. F. was told that in Rio de Janeiro alone during that year twenty thousand deaths had occurred; whereas, on examination, he ascertained the entire number to have been only fourteen thousand, and this out of a population numbering about seven million. The fatality of the disease was not equal to that in New Orleans during an ordinary season.

REPTILES AND INSECTS.

Another greatly exaggerated subject was the existence of venomous reptiles and insects, which, it has been stated, are exceedingly annoying. During his sojourn in Brazil, and while traveling from eight hundred to one thousand miles into the interior, and a greater distance on the coast, the lecturer had not found the annoyance arising from this source much greater than in other countries. You will hear of centipedes and scorpions, and probably see them, but they are no more frequently met with than similar venomous and troublesome reptiles in Italy; and if any of his hearers were aware of the phlebotomizing properties of the latter, they could form an adequate idea of the evil in Brazil. The lecturer thought if the venerable Baron von Humboldt were to go to Brazil now, he would be compelled to alter his statement about the ravages of the white ants. Humboldt says that because of their depredations, there is no volume over one hundred years old in the country; but this was pronounced a mistake, for in Rio de Janeiro Mr. Y. found a library containing one hundred thousand volumes, and various old documents were among them, as well as in other ways.

Col. Aaron Stockton, who resides near the falls of Kanawha, recently sold to Kroome, Pickett & Co., who are erecting works for the manufacture of coal oil, on the Kanawha river, a tract of 2000 acres of land near that river, for the sum of $50,000. This land has been selling within the last three years at $2 50 per acre, and this sale shows an advance of $22 50 per acre, or 1000 per cent.

George Washington had a set of artificial teeth for which he paid five hundred dollars.

THE WORKINGS OF KNOW-NOTHINGISM.—Louisville is a model know-nothing city. "Americans" rule there in undisturbed glory. The Democrat relates an instance of know-nothing sagacity, as follows:

"Not long since the Mayor advertised for proposals to dig and wall a couple of wells which were very much needed in that part of the city—the one at the corner of Clay and Washington streets, and the other at the corner of Hancock and Washington. A German citizen, Mr. Heffler, we believe, made a bid for the contract, which was considered satisfactory, and which was accepted. During the last summer or autumn the wells were dug, walled, and supplied with pumps, and the work and water gave the most unbounded satisfaction to the citizens of that vicinity, who had labored under the inconvenience of inadequate supplies of water. Not being aware of any delinquency on the part of the contractor, a domestic man, who lives within carrying distance of one of the pumps, was surprised recently to see Mr. H. and his employees diligently engaged in removing the pump, excavating the curbing, and rendering their valuable pump a useless wreck.

"With existence renewed, freshened by the inflow of this pure life from the divine fountain of life—with my heart made more tender and loving by the sweet, mysterious influences by which babyhood, mighty in helplessness, and without speech most eloquent, comes to us—I feel like consecrating myself anew to the service of such as Jesus took in his arms and blessed—and of you, whom maturity makes kin to her once elected to the highest joy and deepest anguish of mortality—her whom he first loved and most tenderly remembered in his last hour. My work has now a more serious character than at first; now I can claim your sympathy and sisterly aid in a common purpose—an equal interest. Now I know your hearts will be with me, by the quickened throats, the earnest, unselfish glow of my own. So let us begin the new year—counting surely and confidently upon each other's sympathy and God's blessing."

KENTUCKY AGE.

TUESDAY, NOV. 1: JAN. 20, 1857.

TO OUR FRIENDS.

The present is a most favorable time for our friends to exert themselves in behalf of the Age; and as we are desirous of commencing the next year with a largely increased circulation we confidently ask their united aid and co-operation.

To render our efforts more systematic we have appointed Agents in this and the adjoining counties who we trust will second our exertions. The Age will be as it has heretofore been a faithful exponent of democratic measures and principles. The political contest in this State next year will be one of unequalled interest; and it behoves the democrats to be on the alert, to give increased circulation to our party organs and thereby keep the minds of the people fully aroused. The revolution in Kentucky must not cease until we have a democratic Legislature, a democratic Governor, a democratic Congressional representation—democratic United States Senators—in a word, a democratic State policy and a democratic State administration.

JUST THE SEASON.—It health follows the administration of a remedy for disease, almost without exception, though it is prescribed in a million of instances, and in all forms of disease, all the doctors on the globe could not make the people believe that it was not a good remedy, or that the inventor was not a public benefactor. Hurley's sarsaparilla is expressly designed to act on those organs whose functions are essential to health—the stomach, liver, lungs, kidneys, and skin, restoring their deranged functions, or it is, and purifying and cleansing the blood—the very fountain of life.

[From the N. Y. Evening Mirror]
THE MAN OF DESTINY.

Bonner has never yet claimed that the circulation of the New York Ledger is over one hundred and ninety thousand, and yet we know that it is over two hundred and twenty-five thousand!

This is a big, vast, an almost incomprehensible circulation, truly; but Bonner considers it only a mere beginning—a point d'appui—a base of operations. He wants a half-million before stopping to take breath, and preparing no to do "something enormous!" His page advertisements and his $5,000 checks for advertising, he looks upon simply as pleasant little efforts in a small way—better than nothing, perhaps, but not at all worthy of the greatest family paper in the world. Subscriptions are pouring in by the bushel, but he wants one to come by the ton. He has monopolized all of the most popular writers in the country; but that does not satisfy him; he is looking across the Atlantic, and into the womb of the future, for more. And just here an idea occurs to us; if any body wants to make a handsome speculation, let him "grow" a corps of popular writers. Bonner will pay any price for them, and give him a premium besides.

Really, this man Bonner must be past a stop to!

He is too extravagant and too monopolizing. Common folks, and common purses, stand no sort of chance along side of him and his. He renders competition hopeless; and as competition is the life of trade, he who kills competition—who smothers competition—whom overthrows competition, and freightens it into fits, and knocks into the middle of next week, and keeps it there, should, to say the least, be looked after. But Bonner is past looking after. A man with the entire press of the country on his side, with all the newsletters working for him like so many lemmings, with all the ladies and the rest of mankind "awful" to read his paper; what can he do with him? Nothing—literally nothing—except to turn in, with all the rest, and help him along as one best can; and this article may be set down, to our credit, as one of these involuntary and inevitable losses. The Ledger prospectus, by the way, will be found in our advertising columns. Read it, if you wish to subscribe for the great family paper.

CHARLES COURT, is our authorized agent at Clemensville. Subscribers at Boyd's Station and Harrisonville, intended to us for subscriptions to the Age will pay the same to Mr. C.

NOTICE.—The Cynthians Debating Club will hold its regular meeting on Wednesday evening next, at 8 o'clock. Members are requested to be punctual in their attendance.

The attention of the reading public is particularly called to the advertisement of our neighbor, S. Apfel, in another column. Mr. A. has brought on within the last few days the largest and most complete stock of Fall and Winter Clothing, Hoods and Caps, Shoes and Boots ever brought to this market, and all of the best and choicest quality of goods, which he is bent and determined on selling as low as not lower than goods can be offered for Cincinnati, as his aim is to bring that market right at our doors. Quick sales and small profits is his only motto. Each and every one would consult their own interest by calling at his house before purchasing elsewhere, if they wish to save money. Now is the time to make purchases.

We are authorized to announce A. C. Casey, as a candidate for Constable in this district.

W. H. MARTIN, M. D.

LOUISVILLE BUSINESS.

THE WONDER
NINETEENTH CENTURY:
IMPORTANT AND OF GREAT CONSIDERATION TO THE SUFFERING.
THOS. A. HURLEY'S

Sarsaparilla.

Of all the remedies that have been discovered during the present age for the "thousand ills that flesh is heir to," none equal this wonderful preparation. Only three years have elapsed since the discoverer (who spent a decade in studying, experimentalising, and perfecting it) first introduced it to the public, and it is already recognised as the most valuable in all the arts of medicine to be the most surprising and effective remedy for certain diseases of which they have knowledge.

All other compounds or simples of the root have hitherto failed to command the sanction of the faculty, because, on being tested, they have been found to contain noxious ingredients, which neutralise the good effects of the Sarsaparilla, and sometimes injure the health of the patient. It is not so with Hurley's preparation.

This is the pure and genuine extract of the root, and will, on trial, be found to effect a certain and perfect cure of the following complaints and diseases:

Fractures of the Bones, Rheumatic Costiveness, Indigestion, Diseases of the Kidneys, Liver Complaint, Dyspepsia, Epilepsy, Palpitation, Pulmonary Diseases, Scrofula, or King's Evil, Piles, Sypilis, Female Irregularities, Fistula, and all Skin Diseases.

Besides curing the above, it is also known to be a great and powerful tonic, purifying the blood and invigorating the system.

In short, it is, without exception, in the cases mentioned, and its general effect on the system, the most efficacious, and the most desirable remedy of the age. It is already extensively used throughout the country, and is fast obtaining an European reputation. The instances of cures it has effected are daily coming to the proprietor's knowledge, and he has no hesitation in recommending it to one and all who desire to procure relief from suffering. One bottle being tried, its effects will be too apparent to admit of further doubt.

Recollect Hurley's Sarsaparilla is the only genuine article.

Price $1 per bottle, or six bottles for $5.

For sale at the manufactory, corner Seventh and Green streets, Louisville, Ky., and by all wholesale houses throughout the United States and Canada.

DR. LACKWELL'SSarsaparilla*VERSICOLA:*For the Cure of Scrofula, Dyspepsia, Chronic Rheumatism, Secondary Syphilis, and Blood Impurities of all kinds.

MLLDTOWN, Jefferson county, Ky., Aug. 13, 1855.

DA. VAUGHAN—Dear Sir: In the summer of 1852 I had a black boy afflicted with something like Scrofula; his head, neck, and all of his joints were covered with running ulcers. I had lost two of the same family, similarly afflicted, and had given up all hope for him, when I commenced the use of your "Blackwell's Sarsaparilla and Versicola," about six bottles of which entirely cured him. Respectfully, JOHN D. POPE, Louisville, Ky., Dec. 28, 1855.

DA. VAUGHAN: Having used your "Dr. Blackwell's Sarsaparilla and Versicola" in my family regularly for the last year, and having fully tested its virtues, I take pleasure in recommending it for Chronic Rheumatism, impurities of the Blood, and Indigestion, and would further say no family should be without it.

Respectfully, MARY ANN LEE,

Fourth st., between Green and Walnut.

The Spectator said: "There is scarcely any educated person of this century who has not, at some time or other, drawn a sincere pleasure from these pages." The Edinburgh Post said: "Few readers of entertaining literature can be ignorant of these popular productions," and also, "The pure morality which reigns through these tales—which we can scarcely dare to call fictions—will render them the most eligible reading for young persons. They ought to be in every family library."
